

WATER QUALITY SUMMIT

Isaac Brownman is the Town of Longboat Key Public Works Director. He is a licensed, professional, civil engineer in the State of Florida. Isaac obtained a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from the University of Central Florida and a master's degree in business administration from Webster University.

Isaac worked in the private sector at Giffels-Webster Engineers, Inc. from 1996 to 1998 as an engineer intern. From 1998 to 2000, he worked as the project engineer in the Charlotte County Public Works Department.

From 2000 to 2017, he worked for Sarasota County government in a variety of roles including engineering supervisor for Land Development Services, design manager for Capital Projects, operations manager for Land Development, and director of Capital Projects. In 2014, he was named director of public works for Sarasota County and also served as the county engineer.

Isaac joined the Town of Longboat Key in August 2017 as the public works director. His department is responsible for overseeing the town's parks, streets, facilities, recreation, beaches, utility operations and capital projects. Public Works also supports town-wide emergency response efforts and solid waste contracts.