

WATER QUALITY SUMMIT

Lee Hayes Byron is the Director for Sarasota County UF/IFAS Extension and Sustainability, which is a partnership between the University of Florida and Sarasota County to bring researched-based information to our community. From agriculture to wildlife and composting to solar, Sarasota County Extension provides classes, speakers, technical assistance, and programs to help residents and businesses build a better future. Previously, she was the sustainability manager for Sarasota County, overseeing sustainability improvements within government operations and the efforts to create a sustainable community across Sarasota County. In previous roles, she was a land manager for Sarasota County's Environmentally Sensitive Lands Protection Program and served as the coordinator for the US Climate Action Network, a coalition of nonprofits working on climate change at the local, national and international levels. She holds a master's degree in environmental management and a bachelor's degree in human biology. She is a native of Sarasota.