

WATER QUALITY SUMMIT

Rep. Margaret Good has a deep appreciation for Florida's rich history and natural wonder. She spent every summer at her grandparent's home swimming in the natural lake, visiting Florida's springs and enjoying Florida's historic sites. Margaret's father, a fourth generation Floridian, was an Episcopal priest and her mother was a nurse. Together, they instilled in her strong values and a commitment to helping others and serving the community.

Margaret worked in the nonprofit community before enrolling in the University of Florida Levin College of Law, where she served as an editor of the Florida Law Review and graduated with honors.

After law school, Margaret, her husband, Richard, and their dog Barney moved to Sarasota's House District 72 and began building their lives together with a strong passion for community. Margaret serves on the board of directors for the Sarasota County Bar Association and is a leader in The Florida Bar. She is an avid runner and volunteers as a board member of the Manasota Track Club.

As an attorney and community leader, Margaret has worked with businesses, individuals and governmental entities and has helped hundreds of people change their lives.

Margaret is an eager public servant who understands it's time to shake it up in Tallahassee and fight for the health care and jobs we need, the education our children deserve, and the environment we love. For years, Tallahassee has offered two options: the status quo or moving backward. Margaret knows it's time to change that.
